

Born and raised in Wisconsin, Daniel Schraith is a 20-year resident of La Crosse and works as a pathologist and hospital laboratory director. His passion for art through the photographic medium began during his medical residency with a course in darkroom technique at a local community center. His photographic works currently adorn the walls of government buildings, businesses and private residences; have been featured on the covers of music CDs, calendars, and corporate annual reports; and have garnered back-to-back 1st place awards of the La Crosse Oktoberfest's annual photography contest.

Artist statement:

My work as a pathologist involves observation and discovery: I use my microscope to observe cells and tissues in order to identify cancer, infections, and other dysfunctions of the human body. I employ my observational and interpretative skills in less morbid settings as a photographer and artist. I use my camera like I use my microscope: to observe, evaluate, diagnose, and communicate.
